

Hooli Names Jack Barker in as CEO as Gavin Belson Exits

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. - Hooli, Inc., announced today that Gavin Belson has exited his role as Chief Executive Officer of Hooli, effective immediately. Hooli's board of directors has named Jack Barker as the new CEO. Jack Barker moves from his previous post as Hooli-Endframe's Head of Product. Before Hooli, Barker served as the CEO for companies such as Entercross Systems and Turnwire.

"I look forward to focusing on spiritual wellness and family," said Belson, "The Hooli corporation is exceptionally well positioned to continue its growth as an industry leader. While a difficult personal decision, this is the right choice for me at this time. I will always cherish my time at Hooli and look forward to future challenges and opportunities."

A spokesperson for the Hooli board has stated: "The Hooli Board would like to thank Gavin for his commitment and effort throughout his time at Hooli. We wish him the best of luck with his future endeavors, and hope he finds the spiritual wellness he seeks. We have begun working with the Federal Trade Commission regarding compliance issues at a company recently acquired by Hooli, and will do everything in our power to cooperate with the federal government."

"I'd like to thank Gavin for all he has done to establish Hooli as one of the premier tech corporations of our day," Barker stated. "I will do all I can to navigate this great company into its' next stage. We at Hooli pledge to work with the Federal Trade Commission to resolve this matter and commit ourselves to earning back the public trust."